QUICK WORK BY THE POLICEMEN

Williamsburg Man Who Was Robbed While Walking in Armistead Avenue It is Said Recognized the Fellow as His Assailant.

"Dr." J. Thompson, colored, who was fined $6.15 by Magistrate Dean Monday night, was rearrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with highway robbery.

The man is accused of being one of the men who held up and robbed Charles Wooten at the corner of Armistead and Newport News avenues Saturday night. It is understood that Mr. Wooten identified Thompson as one of his assailants.

Attorney J. Thomas Newsome came to Hampton yesterday and paid Thompson's fine. As Thompson was leaving the jail Deputy Sheriff C. C. Curtis served the warrant charging highway robbery upon him.

Thompson will be given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Peter B. Stevenson Friday night.

WARWICK COUNTY NOTES.

Dr. Porter Lectures at Denbeigh—Personal Mention.

(Special to the Daily Press.) OYSTER POINT, VA., Sept. 11.—

Under the auspices of the Young Men's Improvement League, Dr. J. W. Porter, of Newport News, delivered a lecture at Denbeigh Baptist church Friday evening, Sept. 7. The address, which was entitled "How to Make Things Go" was made in the speaker's characteristic delightful style.

Mr. Claud Carter, of Menchville, entertained a number of friends Sunday afternoon with a pleasant luncheon on the James river. Oyster Inspector J. F. Seward and Mrs. Seward were in the party.

Just as the Chesapeake and Ohio local passenger train was leaving the station at Oyster Point Saturday evening, an unknown negro hurled a large stone in the train striking another negro on the head, inflicting a painful though not a serious wound. The culprit made his disappearance before he could be caught, and has not been seen since.

Miss Annie Foxwell, of Gloucester.

THE TABLES OF STONE.

A Curious Calculation From the Talmud and the Bible.

Did you ever figure on the probable size and immense strength of Moses, basing your calculations on the dimensions of the tables of stone, as given by the Talmud writers? In the Talmud (folio 28, column 8) it is said that the tables of stone upon which the commandments were written were six ells long, six ells broad and three ells thick. In the Bible, Exodus xxii, 15, we are told that "Moses went down from the mount and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand."

"Hand," mind you, not hands, though it must be admitted that it would have taken a strong pair of hands to perform the task of carrying them, even on the level. Now, we will put the Talmudic and the Biblical accounts together and apply the mathematical rule. The Hebrew ell or cubit was, at its least estimate, a measure of eighteen inches, which would have made each of the tables a stone block nine feet long, nine feet wide and four and one-half feet thick. If common stone weighed as much as the square foot then as it does now the tables would tip the beam at about twenty-eight tons! Was Moses one of the giants of those days or has some one made a mistake in calculations or in the statement of supposed facts?—Exchange.

SARDINES.

The Way They Are Cooked and Prepared For Market.

Sardines are caught in nets, and after being well washed the heads are cut off and the fish are sprinkled lightly with salt. After lying for a few hours they are placed on grids in rows almost perpendicular. The frames are then placed in pans containing boiling olive oil. The oil is changed as soon as it becomes too black and dirty for continuing the cooking process.

As soon as the fish are considered sufficiently cooked, they are withdrawn from the pans of oil and the grids are placed on the tables covered with zinc, the surface of the table inclining toward a groove in the center. The oil is thus carried to a vessel prepared to receive it. Round the table stand the women whose business it is to pack the fish closely and uniformly in boxes.

The boxes being full, the fish are covered with fresh oil and the lids are then soldered down. Thus hermetically sealed they are placed in iron baskets and immersed in boiling water. The smaller boxes are thus boiled for half an hour and the larger ones somewhat longer, in proportion to size of box. The fish are then ready for the market.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Wearing of Hats.

More or less of a modern habit is the constant wearing of hats. Even as late as 1759 Horace Walpole mentions as a matter of course that he never wears a hat. "Remember," he says, writing to a friend notoriously careless about his dress, who was expected home from Holland, "everybody that comes from abroad is supposed to come from France, and whatever they wear at their first reappearance immediately grows the fashion. Now if, as is very likely, you should through inadvertence change hats with the master of a Dutch smack in a week's time we shall all be equipped like Dutch skippers. You see, I speak very disinterestedly, for, as I never wear a hat myself, it is indifferent to me what sort of a hat I don't wear."

The Word "Privilege."

"Privilege," seen so often of late in the phrase "special privilege," has been used commonly to signify a right, immunity or benefit enjoyed by a person beyond the common advantages of other individuals. Primarily, however, the word signifies an ordinance in favor of an individual, and this is in keeping with its derivation—"privus," one's own, private, and "lex," law. It is in this old sense that Chaucer uses the word.

How to Arrive.

Man has to be humbugged if one would command him, and he has no use for the humble person. The way to get into a publisher's or editor's office (or indeed any other with a man at the head of it) is with a tremendous show of bounce and swagger.—A Splinter in M. A. P.

DEFENDANT DAUGHTER OF FRIEND

Divorce Suit Recently Tried It Is Said Cost More Than $110,000 and Funds Came From the Pocket of the Retired Steel Magnate.

(By Associated Press.)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11.—The fight made by Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje against her husband's suit for divorce is said to have been financed by Andrew Carnegie. The cost of her defense has been estimated at $110,000 or more.

Mrs. Hartje is a granddaughter of Thomas A. Scott, late president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Mr. Carnegie's old preceptor. John Scott, father of Mrs. Hartje, and Andrew Carnegie were boys together.

It is stated that John Scott requested Thomas M. Miller, Mr. Carnegie's former partner and friend, to write to Mr. Carnegie and request him to place one of his old workmen, who was in need, on the pension list. Mr. Miller wrote to Mr. Carnegie as requested, mentioning the name of John Scott.

Mr. Carnegie replied that he would have the case of the workman investigated. He also wrote, it is said, that he had become deeply impressed by the divorce proceedings of the daughter of his friend, John Scott, and that "in defense of American womanhood he would be pleased to contribute toward the defense of Mrs. Hartje against the accusations of her husband."

The trial of Clifford Hooe, the negro who confessed perjury in swearing he had been intimate with Mrs. Hartje, will be called next Thursday. Hooe has been bailed out through the efforts of Hartje's attorneys. He now avows detectives engaged by Mrs. Hartje compelled him to make the confession.
